AUTOMOBILITY AND VAS TO SHAKE UP THE MOBILITY VEHICLE MARKET

Enabling Queenslanders with disability to live their best life!

Two of Australia’s leading wheelchair vehicle conversion experts, Automobility and Vehicle Access Solutions (VAS) have announced a strategic business alliance that will challenge the private and commercial conversion market in the Queensland and Northern New South Wales region.

Combining the commercial vehicle skills of VAS with the private conversion capabilities of Automobility, the alliance aims to offer complete vehicle conversion solutions to support the 261,300* Queenslanders living with disabilities, who require ongoing assistance with self-care and mobility.

Jeff Watters, Director of Melbourne-based Automobility explained that the new partnership brings together over 35 years of experience and knowledge and puts the needs of customers foremost, with a strong focus on delivering personalised solutions and high-quality Australian manufacturing.

“There’s no one-size-fits-all solution for wheelchair users. Each individual brings a unique set of personal and lifestyle requirements, from seating preference and other special needs or requirements” Mr Watters said.

“We always put the customer first and take the time to understand their specific needs. We have employed some of the best engineers at our Melbourne manufacturing facility, and tailor every conversion to meet our customer’s needs.”

Queensland GM, David Freeman says VAS products are manufactured locally at their Brisbane facility, and the company is looking forward to creating more competition among the private conversion companies around Queensland, to help customers get the best possible solution.

“We are well established and respected throughout Queensland for our commercial vehicle, minibus and taxi conversions. In partnership with Automobility, we’re looking forward to expanding our offering to deliver any type of vehicle conversion whether it’s B2B or B2C,” Mr Freeman added.

Automobility and VAS are both registered NDIS providers and can help customers navigate the complicated funding process from start to finish. Both companies are also experienced working with Government funding schemes and insurance/compensatory funding bodies.
